GEORGE S. PARKER REVIEWS JOURNEY TO FOREIGN SOIL

PECULIAR AND THRILLING INCIDENTS IN TRIP TO EGYPT BY JANESVILLE FAMILY PROVE INTERESTING.

CAUGHT IN SANDSTORM

Party of Eight Camped and Slept on Desert Near Great Giza Pyramids.—Visited City of Thebes.

The recent trip to many foreign lands, experienced by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker, daughter, Virginia, and son, Kenneth, of this city, is, when told in words, one of the most thrilling and interesting stories in our travel. Through the kindness of Mr. Parker, the Gazette has here printed a short account of the journey, which lasted for some eight or nine weeks.

The Madeira Islands, located just off the coast of Spain, was the first place of interest visited by them. The capital, Funchal, is located on a volcanic island. The carving of wood and the getting of honey is the main occupation of the spot. Some of the most beautiful flowers in the world grow on this secluded place of land. The party arrived on these islands on Saturday, Sunday, and while there visited the church, which by the way is a strong Catholic community. Women were clad in peculiar colored robes, their heads being covered with rich colored handkerchiefs.

On Monday, the 14th, the steamer arrived at Gibraltar, the huge rock owned by England, defying any power in the world. The rock stands about 1,000 feet high, and the city of Gibraltar contains about 20,000 people. Looking through a strong glass a person can see the port holes in the great walls of the city. The city is held by the English at an enemy. The port is a large military place, containing hundreds of secret passageways, with plenty of provisions in the garrets. There is a severe watch. There are dry docks in the distance, and also dreadnaughts in the harbor, that are kept steamed up all the time, ready to be put into actual service.

Algiers, the capital of Algeria, a Moorish country bordering the northern coast of Africa, was next visited. The people living in this wonderful city, are perhaps the most dignified looking set in the world. They wear white turbans on their heads, and white robes on their bodies. Until one looks at their bare feet, which they travel about, extensively, they are thought to be very proud men. The majority of the people living in this city are beggars. Everything is open, and the people are filthy. While in this city, Mr. Parker made the acquaintance of Mr. Vale, a former U. S. paymaster in the navy, and a man whose knowledge of this city, the beggars will be running after a traveler asking for aid, with eyes bulged out, sometimes blind, and if the traveler knows the Moorish language, he can get rid of the pests easily by scaring them.

Monte Carlo, a city in the principality of Monaco, on the extreme southeastern corner of France, proved to be a sensational visit, because of the vice going on within the city. In this city is a large Casino, where grand opera and gambling form the chief pastime. No person under 22 years of age can enter this Casino, if it is known. A green ticket is first obtained for entrance. This ticket must then be punched by inspectors. It is surprising to note the amount of gambling going on here, at all times. There is always somebody waiting to get a place at one of the tables. It is also surprising to note that the majority of the gamblers are elderly women headed in the fifties and sixties. Thousands of dollars pass hands every minute. Monaco is run by an absolute ruler, and is really a country by itself.

Genoa, an interesting and antique city, that followed on the trip towards Egypt, is Genoa, Italy, the birthplace of Christopher Columbus. There is a cemetery in this city which contains more than 10,000 dead. It is a Catholic burying ground, and has thousands of the most beautiful tombstones and monuments in the universe.

From Genoa, the party journeyed to Naples, where a son, Kenneth, who is studying languages in Germany, met them, prepared to take the extended trip into Egypt. Naples is considered one of the greatest immortal cities in the eastern continent. A great menace to the city is Mt. Vesuvius, from whose top, smoke is being poured out in large masses, and most unfortunately, another crater at the other end of the city, is the most interesting and prettiest of the two volcanoes. Within the center of this crater, people of Naples take their hot water baths. Mr. Parker enjoyed a Roman bath in the side of this crater during his stay in Naples. The custom house at this city is a most unusual place to receive your luggage. The youths hired to transfer baggage, will grab your suitcase, trunk, or whatever it may be, and lift it upon his shoulder, and run to the custom house with it. Then you must tip the boy, perhaps several times, before obtaining your luggage. Just outside the city is the St. Paul's Arch, where the Great Appian Way begins its course toward Rome.

The best part of the entire trip was made in Egypt, the land of mystery. The party first passed through the straits of Messina, which place was the scene of several eruptions, a few weeks ago. In the distance, the most of Egypt, the party found a huge volume of lava constantly and discharging it many miles away. After a three days' trip, they landed at Cairo, the northern port of Egypt. Alexandria was first noticed, but the city is now of so little importance that the party passed into Cairo, for a short stay. Cairo is a modern city, in fact entire Egypt is governed in a capable manner by the English. Cairo has many streets, and loads many of the Mediterranean seaports in being an up-to-date spot. Going into the native quarters of Cairo, you find narrow streets, perhaps eight feet wide. The stores are most beautiful, and many of them carry a large amount of stock. One jewelry firm, with the best diamonds, boasts of carrying a stock worth a million dollars.

Mr. Parker and family were fortunate to receive an invitation to one of the wealthy Arab's homes, to lunch. Mr. Parker was told, however, by the Arab father, that he must dine as they dined. This the Parker family declined, and soon after were ushered into a strange home, in a strange land, where no English was spoken other than by the head of the house. They were taken into the dining room, and seated around a small table in the center of the room. Waiters brought in an immense tray, with the first course upon it. Instead of receiving a very light lunch of peculiar food, which was expected, a full seven course meal was served. Just how the visitors were going to eat off of a large piece of round beef, chicken and red birds, which constituted the first course, was a mystery to them. They could find no knives or forks, and were told that they must use their hands. The head of the Arab family told them that God had given them hands to eat with, and not knives and forks. They managed to get away with the luncheon, and enjoyed it very much. It was a real experience. Between every course, two waiters entered, one carrying a peculiar pitcher with water, and the other a bowl. Every person seated is allowed to wash their hands. This act was repeated with seven times during the noon hour. The lunch lasted for over an hour and a half.

Following the invitation to lunch they joined another tourist party of four on a day camp in the desert for several days was experienced. The party was accompanied by mules, donkeys, tents, and a dozen Arabs. They traveled directly to a spot located three miles from the great Giza pyramid. In the evening the Arabs, who were the cooks, guards and attendants, displayed some very clever dancing, besides engaging in games and playing their Arabian music for the party. An applause would force them to every corner, two waiters entered, one carrying a peculiar pitcher with water, and the other a bowl. Every person seated is allowed to wash their hands. This act was repeated with seven times during the noon hour. The lunch lasted for over an hour and a half.

On the party's second day on the desert, a sand-storm was experienced. Such a storm is somewhat disagreeable, but little danger is apt to result. It is in fact, the largest storm noticed in the distance, the Arabs ran towards the tents, fastened them more securely, and then stretched themselves flat on the ground. The storm passed, and could be seen traveling for miles in the distance.

The Giza pyramids are huge masses of rock, laid more perfectly than any kind of masonry today. Every stone of the narrow passageway, the party three is 451 feet high, and it is said that 100,000 men worked for twenty years erecting it.

The party rode camels on the third day, a distance of twelve miles, to the tombs of the Sacred Bulls. These tombs are underneath the surface of the desert, hundreds of feet. An incline plane, cut out of solid rock is cut underground, and at the end of the narrow passageway, the party were ushered into a room, cut out of stone, and of large size. There are twenty-four of these rooms adjoining each other, with huge sarcophagi in the center of each room, ready to cover the remains of the sacred bulls. These rooms are declared to be 3,500 years old.

Excavating is one of the big happenings on the desert today. One group of two hundred men were engaged in scientific work, near the pyramids, and were successful in finding hundreds of pieces of old carvings and tablets.

The party left their desert trip after several days, and went to Luxor, a small city five hundred miles to the south. They found little of interest here, and journeyed to Karnak, where many obelisks were noticeable. Thebes was next visited. This city is on the other side of the Nile, and is termed the city of the dead. Here much excavating is going on. The same sort of incline plane to rooms under ground are found here, but instead of bulls being buried, the remains of dead kings, dating back many centuries are said to have been placed here with mummies. The party visited these tombs. After a short stay the party took to the steamer, which took them back to Europe.

After their return to Europe, Rome and several Italian cities were visited. Milan and a journey through the Swiss Alps, with the magnificent views of the scenery that has made this country famous the world over. At Rome they met Mrs. G. Jeffrie and Miss Helen Jeffrie, and traveled with them from Rome to Florence.

After a short stay in Germany, Mr. Parker and Kenneth went to Copenhagen, Denmark. Mrs. Parker and daughter remained in Stuttgart where Mr. and Mrs. John Gollner, former Janesville residents, reside, and where Kenneth Parker has spent the past year in study.

Mr. Parker's story of his journey through Egypt is most intensely interesting. He went places and saw sights not usually visited by travelers. In one of his journeys he found that his guide was a member of the Masonic order and in fact found traces of masonic symbols on some of the ruins, showing the age of this wonderful brotherhood.

Mrs. Parker and daughter will remain abroad for some weeks, going to Paris to spend some weeks with Kenneth who will take up studies there before returning to this country.

BOXERS AWAIT GONG IN MILWAUKEE BOUT FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Record Crowd Expected at Mill Between Champion Ritchie and Charley White, Chicago Lightweight.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28.—Fight bugs from all over the central west were gathering here today for the fight tonight between Willie Ritchie, the reigning lightweight king, and Charley White, of Chicago, the challenger. Ritchie commanded big odds in the betting almost up to the hour of the scrap.

Five preliminaries have been arranged for the event and these events will be short affairs. The first three will be five round mix-ups and the semi-final will go six rounds. Ritchie has been training here since last Thursday when he came up from Chicago. He has played golf every morning when the weather would permit and every afternoon he has gone through his punching bag and sparring exercises before a crowd which packed Morgenroth's gymnasium at twenty-five cents per head. Ritchie looked fit today. His going has brought a fine summer sun to his face. His work in training has shown the bugs that despite his slender build and his apparently small shoulders and arms his elbows have a powerful kick. The little fighter's fondness for golf has caused a lot of amusement among his followers who have heard the champion in the past refer to the Scotch game as a suitable exercise for inmates of the Home of the Aged.

The champion has been a favorite here since he disposed of Wolgast fairly effectively in April. Previous to that time there had been a good deal of doubt here as to the "finks" champion's ability to hold his belt. The argument before the Queensbury club then showed that Ritchie is a speed merchant with a pair of maulers that are both good in defensive and offense.

Charlie White arrived here late today and went immediately to his hotel, stirring only to be present at the weighing ceremonies. Other matters connected with the fight were left entirely with his managers. White is a great favorite in Chicago and he had plenty of well wishers here. There are few predictions that White could in any way secure the championship by the argument tonight but there were plenty who believed that Ritchie would not knock out the curly headed scrapper. White is a shifty scrapper and is credited with being just as fast as Ritchie. The chief difference is that Ritchie is supposed to be the stronger and able better to withstand a hard mill.

Almost every ticket had been sold this afternoon and there were evidences that late arrivals would have to wait for newspaper extras tonight to see what happened. At the Wolgast-Ritchie bout in April there were over 3,000 spectators and it was believed that that record will be equalled tonight.

Sport Snap Shots

The dope reveals that there are too many and pitchers in the east and not enough capable batsmen. The Giants, the Phillies, the Yanks, the Athletics, Dodgers, Senators, Braves and Red Sox are all well provided with twirling talent, but alas, they don't seem able to hit. Western critics have dwelt on this with pleasure and delight. They admit that it's a fine thing for a team to have speed kings in profusion, but they seem to figure it out that in the end the western teams with heavy hitting will have the bugle. How this may be does not appear at present. The impartial onlooker feels somewhat that for general results he would take a chance with the nifty pitchers.

One pleasant feature of the Athletics is their freedom from the propensity to beef. When Connie Mack's team loses a game one seldom hears any long-winded alibis. It is doubtful in fact whether ever in his career as a manager has Connie sought to explain away defeat. One would expect it this season if ever. Athletic fans consider that the injury to Barry is a piece of unusual misfortune. The Athletic chief doesn't beat about it though. "The boys are playing their usual game all right," he says. "It's simply a tough race. With warmer weather I think the race will tighten up and I'm sure we'll be there for a whack at the pennant."

The umpire who announces the battery for the Phillies the day Dr. Oscher performs will run an awful chance with the fans. Sometimes the very smallest thing makes them very angry.

The Cincy Reds are pulling their usual early season string, beating without a score for twenty-six innings in a recent series. Rube Benton is helping a great deal with his superb pitching.

The University of Texas baseball team has piled up a neat record for other colleges to climb after. They have won twenty-one straight games.

Mike Mowrey, with the Pirates, is playing the game of his life. He has always behaved in a very presentable manner, both at bat and around the infield. His carrying on of late, however, has been a big item in the success of the Pirates this year and Pittsburgh fans are deeply indebted to Mike and his bat.

Clark Griffith doesn't fret about hotel bills and the like. Nor does he give much of a bang about the widely advertised cost-of-living. He's going to carry thirty players with him this season. "I plan to keep all the men I have under contract and until I am told to dispose of them they may be addressed, care C. Griffith." And it's unlikely that league officials will ask any manager to cut down his staff, whatever its number, as long as the feds are snooping about.

Jake Daubert is going to back a semi-pro team this summer in Brooklyn on the side. The idea being, perhaps, that he'll have all day Sunday to coach 'em along.

Maybe Branch Rickey has Connie Mack in mind. Perhaps that accounts for his success thus far. He has recently announced that he will stick to the bench forever and let the players do the coaching.

CUBS ARE DEFEATED BY STARS, TWO TO ONE

Because Jefferson cancelled the game Sunday afternoon at Jefferson because of rain, the Janesville Stars crossed bats with the local Cubs at the Caloric grounds diamond. The Stars won by the close score of two to one.

The Stars corralled ten hits off the delivery of Deller, twirler for the Cubs, while the Cubs nipped Bidwell, the Stars' moundman, for four. Both teams made two errors. In the first inning the Stars pushed a run across and in the fourth scored their second and last run. Bidwell held the Bruins in check until the fifth, when they scored their only run. The lineups were as follows:

Stars—Spolin, c; Bidwell, p; Fullerton, ss; Miller, 1b; Jackson, 2b; Roberts, 3b; Kaksuske, lf; Leffler, rf; Cronin, cf.

Cubs—Swan, c; Deller, p; Heighan, ss; Sulefobine, 1b; Marshall, 2b; Brommond, 3b; Roberts, J. J.; Rugsy, rf; Boylen, cf.

Two former Yankees may return to New York because of their hard hitting. They are Eddie Cree and Bert Daniels, both outfielders and both playing for Baltimore of the International league. It is largely due to their stick work that the Orioles are leading the International league standing.

Rule for Conversation. "A little more silence, please," thundered the sage of Chelsea. Probably most of us talk too much in general, and too little about the things best worth speaking of. Less gossip and more godliness; less fault-finding and more encouraging; less timidity and more rare though born speech—is not this a good resolution for our conversations?

THE TARIFF AGAIN.

There has been so much guess work as to what the real results of the new democratic tariff would be upon the industries of this country that the following resume of the situation by the Milwaukee Free Press proves most interesting reading just at this time.

"The government's preliminary report of our exports and imports for April shows that the long-standing trade-balance in our favor has been smashed into smithereens; in fact, the balance is now against us to an extent that, to quote one trade authority, has 'not been dreamed of in the past twenty years.'"

"That the new tariff is the cause of this alarming reversal can easily be proved by the figures of the government experts.

"Those figures show that we are being flooded by foreign goods out of all proportion to the significant and determining thing is that all this increase is in the articles that now come in free of duty.

"Thus, during last month, there was an actual decrease of dutiable imports by some three and a half million dollars, while the increase of non-dutiable imports amounted to some thirty millions! Taking the ten months of the fiscal year during seven of which the tariff has been in force, we find the same trend—decrease of $55,000,000 in dutiable imports, an increase of $78,000,000 in imports free of duty.

"In the face of these figures there can be no question that it is the tariff that has deluged this country with foreign goods, with little benefit to the consumer but with large injury to the manufacturer and employer.

"To make the whole trade tendency more clear, we may take the figures for 1911, the year before the presidential election, as representing the last stable period prior to the political change.

"Comparing the exports and imports for April of that year with those of last month, we find that while our exports have decreased nearly $5,000,000, our imports have increased over $50,000,000 in the same period.

"The New York Press, which has gone more analytically into the subject, adds this to the unpleasant diagnosis:

"We discovered in the March reports by classifications, and we shall discover very much more of it in the April reports by classifications when they are made public, that where a year ago we were importing large volumes of partially manufactured articles—paying duty—to go into our mills and factories as material and make work and wages for American labor, as well as products and profits for American capital, now the imports are coming in as articles fully manufactured, taking the American market away from the factories and wage earners that a year ago, using such imported material, partly manufactured, had possession of the American market in those finished articles.

"If this onslaught on American industry, which already has a threatening list of suspended factories to its credit, had brought the intended relief to the consumer, there are those who might hail the new tariff as a great triumph for the Wilson administration. But there has been no such relief.

"With slackening production, with diminishing wage payments, with increased unemployment, such slight reductions in price as might have got by the middlemen have been absorbed by the economic depression.

"There is no escaping it—the new tariff will be the paramount issue in the elections this fall, and if the by-elections and primaries thus far afford any criterion, the verdict will be a repudiation of the democratic revenue vagary and a strong endorsement of protection.

"The people are learning the lesson of their mistake in 1912 through sad experience."

IRELAND'S HOME RULE.

Home rule has again become a fact for Ireland. Only a civic war can cheat the Irish nationalists out of their victory. By their passage for the third time of the bill, the house of commons yesterday made the dreams of Parnell and Redmond a fact after years of strife and trouble.

Since 1855 Ireland has been a dependency of England. English soldiers have policed the island. English landlords have taken their toll from the humbled people. For a time, it is true, the Irish did have a parliament of their own, but through treachery of its own members it was dissolved in 1800 and England assumed uncontrolled sway over the whole of Ireland, north and south, east and west, unrestricted. In 1848 came the revolution, not really a revolution, but an uprising against the injustice shown.

Charles Stewart Parnell paved the way for the first revival of home rule. This brilliant and talented Irishman fought bravely for his cause and the organization of the Land League in 1873 was an initial step in the final result which came yesterday. But Parnell failed. His faction became factionated and he died in 1891 unable to accomplish the thought dearest to his heart—the freedom of Ireland. But there were others to take up the cudgels. John Redmond appeared in the forefront but it was not until the Irish war in 1898 that the Irish factions became consolidated and hope was held out. Since then it has been a bitter fight.

In the last contest it has been the North of Ireland against the South—Protestant Ireland versus Catholic Ireland. The Orangemen of Ulster have maintained that home rule will mean Rome rule.

It will inflict intolerable injustice on the minority in Ireland, who believe that neither their civil nor their religious liberty would be safe.

Ireland is bi-racial, the two races differing widely in character, politics, and religion. Home rule will give one race the ascendancy.

On the other hand the nationalists maintained: Ireland's spirit of nationality demands self-government.

No identity of characteristics or economic conditions between Great Britain and Ireland.

Act of union, passed in 1801, was the result of bribery, corruption and fraud.

It has crushed trade and industries, weighted Ireland with unjust taxation, fostered discontent and dissatisfaction, and has decreased the population from 8,175,000 to 4,382,000 in seventy years.

It has made Ireland a land of poverty and disease, low wages, insanitary dwellings, landlordism, evictions and starvation.

Ireland today spends more money on policemen than on school teachers.

Every colony in the British empire favors self-government for Ireland because they have it themselves and know its value.

Self-government would make Irishmen loyal as it has made Canadians loyal.

Ulster is not overwhelmingly Unionist, is not prosperous, is not pre-eminently law-abiding, nor intelligent.

The Irish people have not the slightest control over the 100,000 government officials in Ireland who spend $3,750,000 annually.

This is the situation in a nutshell. The first step has been taken. The first victory won. Irishmen the world over rejoice that Ireland is again a country. The Ulster question remains to be settled. If peace, fully well and good; if not, by force of arms home rule will come to Ireland within the next twelve months.

The financial interests of Ireland have become more and more bound up with those of the United Kingdom.

There is no national Irish demand for home rule, because there has never been a homogeneous Irish nation. Ulster stands outside the nationalist unit.

Home rule will degrade the status of Ulster citizenship by impairing its relationship to the imperial parliament.

It will involve the entire catholicizing of Irish education in all its branches.

It will seriously injure Ulster's material prosperity—industrial, commercial and agricultural.

It appears as though those A B C peace delegates know what they are doing after all and perhaps Secretary Bryan may not be as happy about the results as he might otherwise if he could know the inside workings of the negotiations.

The Wisconsin National Guard is to go into state camp next month. It would be strange if while they were all mobilized there the order should come to recruit them into the United States service.

Janesville has two big events scheduled for the present summer—a Fourth of July celebration and a fair. Either one would be ample for exploiting Janesville, but combined it should put the city on the map with a vengeance.

Saturday next we pay tribute to the departed soldiers and sailors of the great struggle of the sixties. There are but few of the survivors left and it is meet and right to honor them while they live.

After a long delay spring appears to have arrived in truth, or is it summer? However, speak quietly for perhaps it may turn cold again before Decoration day.

On The Spur of The Moment

In the Spring.

In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.

And he swears unto his sweetheart by the moon and stars above.

That he'll buy a high toned bungalow and housewife for her.

And he's working as a ribbon clerk at $18 per.

He loves to build air castles as they stroll beneath the moon.

When he's got a bill for laundry that he's got to pay right soon.

And the lady whom he boards with tells him that he's got to pay.

Or has to take his suitcase and move out on Saturday.

It's no use to try and stop 'em. Let 'em rave on while they may.

For it's only temporary and they'll both wake up some day.

'Tis a romance of the springtime with no marriage in its wake.

One of many hundred thousand of the kind that do not "take."

Uncle Abner.

When a feller gets real poor he generally adopts eight or ten dogs to support.

Sam Higgins says he is surely getting the worth of his money out of the second-hand automobile he bought off a Deacon Stubbs about a month ago.

He runs it one day and then tinkers it five days. He has put some tires on it that cannot be punctured. They are made out of wrought iron and he can't see but what it rides just as easy as it did before.

He figures that he is getting his money's worth this way. While he is tinkering the car he ain't burning no gasoline.

Civilization evidently ain't going to progress so far that some slicker can't come through our village and clean up several hundred dollars on fake notes for steel ranges, etc.

There ain't no use in trying to pound any sense into a feller's head when he insists on wearin' celluloid collars.

Miss Amy Pringle's diamond ring, which Elmer Jones gave her for Christmas, has grown so dull that she has to look at it three times in order to see if it is there.

Grandma Whipple is having a new set of teeth made by our local dentist. She has decided that there is no economy in cheap teeth. The last set, made by Jed Frink, our talented blacksmith, never gave complete satisfaction.

No feller is a regular huttel clerk until he has got a diamond stickpin.

Ren Binks, our gentlemanly and congenial station agent, wears a red flannel undershirt winter and summer. He says he kin never tell when he may have to flag a passenger train so that somebody from this town kin get on, although this hasn't happened since the St. Looy exposition.

Rev. Hudnutt of the Hard Shell church preached a sermon last Sunday on the Mexican war.

It is the same sermon he preached on the Spanish war back in 1898, but nobody woke up to hear it either time, so it makes no difference.

Sober second thoughts are all right, but if a feller would stay sober all the time his first thoughts would be all right, too.

If you would spend your money judiciously—keep your eyes on the bargains the merchants are offering in these columns.

Annoying Either Way.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, at the recent benefit of the Authors' society in New York, said to a reporter: "I like to see authors work together in harmony. Authors are prone, you know, to be a little bit unfriendly. I said once to a noted playwright: 'How is it that I never see you at any of your conferences' first nights?' 'Well,' he replied, 'I'll tell you. If the play is bad it annoys me, and if it's good it annoys me, too.'"

Money Wanted.

"Brudren," said a darkey minister down on a plantation, "brudren, I've got a five dollar sermon, an' a two dollar sermon, an' a one dollar sermon, an' I want dis here Indicate audience to take up a collection as to which one of dem dey can afford to hear."

CELESTIAL WANDERER VIEWED BY JANESVILLE PEOPLE

Star gazers in Janesville saw the new Kritzinger comet last night. Although the vagabond star was 47,000 miles from the earth, it was plainly visible through a small telescope. It hung over the northeastern horizon like a long, heavy cloud, with a bright arch in the center.

The comet was first sighted in March by an astronomer named Professor Kritzinger, in Kiel, Germany. Professor E. E. Barnard of the Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., describes it:

"Its distance from the sun is 115,000 miles," he said. "Today, May 15, it is in the right ascension of 25 minutes. Its declination is north 30 degrees and 32 minutes. Its motion is five minutes of time east and twenty-seven minutes north daily. The position of the comet tonight is 2 degrees north of the second magnitude star Beta Cygni and 124 degrees southeast of the bright star Zeta. Its brightness is eight and one-half magnitudes. The comet may be seen in the constellation Cygnus."

"NOT GUILTY" PLEA MADE BY COCHRANE

Judge Maxfield Sets Bail at Eight Hundred Dollars—Examination on Thursday Morning.

"Not guilty," was the plea entered by James Cochrane when arraigned before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court yesterday afternoon on the charge of assault and battery, made by Chief of Police P. D. Champion. Being unable to furnish the eight hundred dollar bail set by the court, Cochrane was committed to the county jail until his examination Thursday, May 28, at ten o'clock.

Charges of a more serious nature may be preferred against Cochrane than plain assault and battery when an investigation of the alleged assault is made by District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie, who is prosecuting a case in Beloit at the present time. Cochrane made no explanation in court over his plea of not guilty, despite the serious charges of his wife whom, it is alleged, he brutally attacked Sunday afternoon.

STATE BAR PLANS MANY DISCUSSIONS

Annual Meeting of Association Will Be Held at Green Bay.

Necessary changes in Wisconsin courts, if any are needed, will be one of the most important subjects to be discussed at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Bar Association at Green Bay June 24th and 25th. A committee of ten, of whom Chief Justice Winslow of the Wisconsin supreme court is chairman, is now engaged in outlining proposed changes in the existing organization of Wisconsin courts, and the state lawyers intend to take up points which are already being considered by this committee.

Window to Speak

Justice Winslow will also speak on "Courts of Conciliation" at the opening session. That evening a joint session will be held with the branch of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology at which Chief Justice William R. Riddell of Toronto, Canada, will speak on "Criminal Law and Procedure." He will also attend the Thursday session of the Bar Association and talk on Canadian courts.

Among the questions to be considered on the final day will be: Should the proposed amendment to section 12 of article 7 of our constitution as to the change in the number of circuits and judges in a circuit, to be voted on November next, be adopted?

Should section 12 of article 7 be amended so as to permit circuit judges to appoint their own clerks?

Senator A. W. Sanborn and George R. Hundall will discuss the subject. Should all contested issues in county court be transferred to the circuit court for original trial on request of either party, or if not so requested the decision of the county court on the facts be final? If not so transferred should the appeal go direct to the supreme court?

Judge George Grimm will give the paper.

Should all municipal courts be established by general statute to be adopted or not by each county as it needs require. If so, should the legislature, county board or boards return the adoption?

As to Jurisdiction. What should be the maximum and minimum jurisdiction both civil and criminal of such courts?

Should counties have the adoption to unite county court and municipal court into one? L. L. Baldwin and Judge T. H. Ryan will talk on these subjects.

The election of officers will be held the afternoon of June 25 and the evening banquet in the evening. Chief Justices Riddell and Winslow responding to toasts.

The wives of Green Bay lawyers intend entertaining the wives of visiting members of the association. Plans include hostesses on Green Bay, motor rides and receptions.

ADVERTISING DURING SUMMER MONTHS

IT is "keeping everlastingly at it" the quiet, continuous brand of publicity that worries its way through to success. Clothes have to be worn, and the necessities of life provided for, and almost every article, with the exception of purely seasonable goods, is in equal demand in the summer as well as in the winter.

The Daily Newspaper in a large percentage of cases follows the holiday maker to his summer home or cottage, because it is the only available channel for the news of the day, and it is read with an avidity that is absent at other times of the year.

To the modern housewife any respite from the thralldom of stuffy stores and glaring pavements is welcome--she reads the advertising columns of the Daily Newspaper, and makes it her shopping guide especially during the summer months, and the advertiser whose announcements are missing at this time is losing momentum which will take considerable time and expense to regain at a later date.

For any of these reasons the wise advertiser will maintain a steady appeal the year round, and the result will be a splendid accession of sales in what is generally considered the "slack" season and maintenance and increase in prestige whose value cannot be overestimated--Economic Advertising.

If you have a selling problem for summer months The Gazette's Service Bureau is ready to work for you, gratis. A corps of trained publicity experts will bring to bear years of experience and knowledge on your individual problem if you say the word.

INSTRUCTION GIVEN ON PREPARING SOIL BY PROFESSOR WEST

Soil and Weather Conditions Named
As Being of Paramount Importance
To Success of Crop.

(By Allen B. West)

The care to be given the acre for the corn growing contest is now the time of planting and the coming up of the corn will vary according to the condition and kind of soil, and the weather. It is impossible to lay down any rules that will apply to all conditions. Here is where the young contestant has an opportunity to use his own judgment and ingenuity, and really that is what makes a contest interesting. One must have a clear idea of the conditions he wishes to bring about and then interest in the work by finding out how best to attain those conditions. Now what are the conditions to be sought? They are just the same now as later.

First. The moisture should be conserved for the use of the plant, for without moisture the plant cannot get the food stored in the soil for it. Second. The weeds should be kept down. They rob the corn plants of the food stored in the soil.

Fortunately the process that will assist in conserving moisture will also kill the weeds, if they are small, and surely the boys of this contest will allow them to grow large, if possible to keep them down.

As has been said before, moisture is conserved by making a dust mulch—keeping the soil stirred so as not to allow the evaporation of any hard crust, as that favors evaporation and valuable moisture goes off into the air.

To attain this condition many farmers practice harrowing the field directly after planting. Now this process is open to some objection, for doubtless many kernels of corn are uprooted by the process and the boys who have so carefully tested their seed and planted it, hate to lose a single kernel, for this means loss in final yield.

Now in many cases if the seed bed was well prepared and the weeds killed previous to planting, and weather conditions ideal, no stirring of the ground will be necessary until the corn comes up.

If, however, there are heavy rains, followed by hot sun, something will need to be done.

In so small an area as an acre, what is called "blind cultivation" may be given, following the rows as indicated by the planter marks, with a one horse fine toothed cultivator. Even if a little soil is thrown on top of the row no harm will be done and small weeds may be destroyed without danger to the germinating seed. If anything more is needed the work of the cultivator may be supplemented by the hoe or rake.

Look Out for Missing Hills.

If cut worms are at work, prepare a delicacy for their special use, by mixing one pound prairie green with thirty pounds of bran, adding a little molasses to make it extra good, and scatter it along the rows or place it in little piles at the hills. The work of the cut worm is distinguished by the hills being cut off just above the ground.

Cophers may also take some of the corn and one must be on the lookout for them. All missing hills should be replaced from seed left for that purpose.

CROP ROTATION WILL KILL TOBACCO PEST

Wire Worm Causes Big Loss Annually
To Weed Crops Throughout
United States.

According to the United States department of agriculture the extensive damage done by the so-called tobacco wire worm in many tobacco states is best prevented by crop rotations, and by doing away with the weeds which are food for the worm. Clean cultivation should be practiced the summer before tobacco is planted, thus making conditions unfavorable for the egg which hatches the worm. This is the advice of the United States department of agriculture's investigators who estimate that the damage done by the worm amounts to $800,000 annually in Virginia alone, and is also great in other eastern states raising tobacco. The department has just issued a bulletin (No. 78) on the subject, entitled "The So-called Tobacco Wire Worm in Virginia."

The growing of crops of cowpeas or crimson clover (preferably the former) the year before crops subject to injury are planted, is one of the most satisfactory and practical means for controlling the pest. Summer plowing and thorough preparation of weedy land are other means advised. The eggs of the pest are deposited by moths in weedy fields during July and August. They hatch in a few days, remain over winter in the soil, and finish their growth during June or July of the following year. They are in their most active feeding stage when tobacco is planted.

Injury to tobacco occurs when this crop is planted on land that was weedy during the previous year. Crops planted on land which has been under clean cultivation are immune. The weeds which have been found to be the more common natural food plants of the worms are the buckhorn plantain, ox-eye daisy, stickweed, and white-top. The presence of these weeds in meadows accounts for injury to tobacco when planted on sod.

The worms when once established in land where their natural food plants are abundant have been found difficult to control. Various insecticides and repellents have been tested, but without satisfactory results.

Fall or winter plowing has been found to reduce injury but is only partially effective, as some of the weeds remain alive and furnish food for the larvae until the tobacco or corn is planted.

The moth from which the wireworm is evolved is medium or rather small in size and colored brown, yellow and white. Some have metallic markings on the forewings which are comparatively long and usually narrow. When raised, the fore wings are rolled around the body and conceal the hind wings, which are folded beneath. This gives the body the appearance of a tiny cylinder, and accounts for the term that is applied to it of "close wings."

These moths fly mostly on dark afternoons or during the early part of the night. They are above common in open fields. When disturbed they make short flights, rarely flying more than a few rods at a time. They usually alight head downward on the stems of plants, and when disturbed they often harmlessly so perfectly with their surroundings that they can scarcely be seen. They, therefore, seldom attract attention, unless some important crop is attacked.

The "tobacco wireworm" does not confine its attacks to tobacco only, but is likewise a serious pest to the corn crop. Injury has been noted in many localities where little tobacco is grown, and it is probable that damage to corn amounts to more than that to tobacco. As with tobacco, injury is most severe when corn is planted on land which has been in weedy pasture or meadow previously, or when planted on land which has not been under cultivation for a number of years and on which there has been a rank growth of weeds. On such land it is usually difficult to secure a satisfactory stand of corn, and the yield is greatly reduced. In central Virginia many fields under observation were replanted several times, and owing to the lateness of the season when a stand was secured the value to the crop was decreased fully one-third.

Corn or tobacco planted on newly cleared land seldom suffers injury. Since the species of weeds which are the natural food plants of the insect do not thrive in woodland, the larvae are not present when the crop is planted.

The larvae attack the young corn near the surface of the ground and burrow into the base of the stalks, the outer portion of the stalk being frequently girdled. If the stalks are small when attacked they are either killed or so stunted or dwarfed that they never mature into grain, and produce little or no grain. Much of the corn is attacked just after the seed has sprouted. The larvae frequently burrow into the folded leaves as the corn is coming through the ground, and the leaves unfold they show transverse rows of holes. When the stalks reach a height of a foot or more comparatively little damage is done. Several larvae are frequently found about the roots of a single stalk, and as many as twenty-two have been collected from a single hill of corn.

In wet weather injury is not apt to be so severe, as the plants are then more vigorous and the weeds which are their suitable food for the worms, more plentiful. As with tobacco, corn is attacked when the natural food supply of the "worms" is cut off.

The same methods of crop rotation and clean cultivation are recommended for corn as for tobacco.

NEW YORK ADDRESSES LIBRARIANS' CONVENTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, May 25.—John Foster Carr, director of the Immigrant Education Society, of New York, was the principal speaker at today's sessions of the sixth annual conference of the American Library Associations which opened its sessions here yesterday. "The Library and the Immigrant," was the subject of an interesting address by Director Carr. He pleaded for more general use of libraries and the extending of facilities that would afford a wider use of them by immigrants. He declared that libraries offer one of the best means for molding the immigrant into an American. "Libraries for Rural Communities," was the subject of an address in which W. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, made a strong plea for more and better libraries in small towns, villages and rural districts as a method of educating those members of such communities who cannot afford the time to attend the regularly established educational institutions. "The Need of a National Archive Building," was the subject discussed by Dr. Franklin Jameson, director of the Department of Historical Research, Carnegie Institute, Washington.

COLOR CHARACTERISTICS.

DOES IT EVER occur to you that colors have characteristics just as people do?

It seems to me that they have. For instance, don't you think that this Kelley green that we see so much of nowadays is a smart color? I always associate smartness with it as I do with some people. When I passed a show window yesterday displaying a display of Kelley green veils and shoes and stockings, the impression was one of smartness just as if I had met a smartly dressed woman.

Dark blue is a quiet, refined color. Like quiet, refined people, it does not obtrude itself upon one's consciousness and yet always leaves a pleasant impression. Neatness and simplicity are also associated with dark blue. It is a tailor-made color. There are probably more plain tailored suits of dark blue than of all the other colors put together.

Red, it seems to me, is a friendly, cheerful color. There is a certain cordiality about it like the glow of an open fire. Of course, different tints and shades of the same color do not have the same characteristics as the basic color, indeed their characteristics may be as far apart as the poles. There is nothing the least smart about a good old-fashioned red, but there are certain shades of red such as lobster and cerise which have as blatant a smartness as Kelley green. Again, red has no suggestion of defiance about it, but its first cousin, scarlet, is distinctly a defiant, flaunting color.

Then, take the different feelings you get from the different shades of pink. Old Rose is distinctly old-maidish and old-fashioned. There is a deadness and primness about it. Shade off into coral and you get a color of age or primness. Shade again into pink and you get a color with all the untrammelled sweetness of youth.

Pink and blue are distinctly young colors. They belong to children and young people and they somehow suggest the youth, innocence and sentimentality of young folks.

Black is peculiar in that it does not seem to have any invariable characteristics of its own, but takes its character from the wearer. Perhaps this is because it is not a color, but merely the absence of color, and hence its negative has to be made positive by that with which it is associated. Black may be said; it may be dull and unobtrusive; it may be dowdy; or it may be smart and stunning, according to its association.

Colors ought to be studied by every woman who wants to be really well dressed, for the relation of a color to the person who wears it is an important factor in making a costume successful or unsuccessful. Colors can be harmonious or unharmonious, not only to complexions, but to personalities. Every woman has certain colors which belong to her either by the right of harmony or of contrast.

What are your colors?

Heart and Home Problems

BY MISS EDITH BETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am sixteen and have a boy friend of sixteen. Our parents are the worst of friends. Would it be all right for us to go out together, as we have known each other since childhood?

(2) Please give me the correct form for an invitation for a "sweet sixteen" party.

(3) Should a girl wear her class colors and flower on her graduation day?

(4) What is it that should you do when you are alone with a girl and her friends?

(5) I do not see why you should not be good friends, if he is a respectable boy, and go out together occasionally, provided your parents are willing and know where you go.

(6) You might have something like this: "You are invited to be present at a 'Sweet Sixteen' party, to be given at the home of Miss Mary Smith on Blank avenue, the evening of June the fifteenth. Dancing and Games."

(7) In the early spring, when the first dandelion shows its green leaf, lay a few boards over a bed of the thickest of them, and see what a delicious salad bed of blanched leaves you can provide for your table for weeks. Dandelion is especially good for the blood, and so should be served often in the spring. The larger leaves, before the blossom comes, may be cut and cooked like spinach or with a little salt pork, then serve with vinegar for a sauce.

Mint is another early arrival, and is most delightful for a sauce with spring lamb. Cut a bunch and bruise the leaves, pour on a little boiling hot vinegar and let it steep for a while, then add a teaspoon or more of powdered sugar, and serve with the lamb.

Mint is also much relished as a mixture with other vegetables for salad. Take a bunch of mint and twice the quantity of lettuce, a few sprays of pepper grass and a few onions sliced. Cut all the greens as fine as possible without crushing, and pour over a French dressing, using three table-spoonsful of oil and one of vinegar, a half teaspoon of salt and a few dashes of red pepper and a half teaspoon of powdered sugar. Mix well and pour over the salad.

Water cress is another most wholesome spring salad, and when one is fortunate enough to get this snappy little salad green it may be served in any number of ways, with or without other greens in combination.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

INNUMERABLE men and women have seen the kettle boil, but it occurred to only one that the force which lifted the lid might be confined and made to do human service. The man finds or makes his opportunities and in turn they help him.

EARLY SPRING SALADS.

Before it is warm enough to do any work outside in the garden, a small shallow box well protected by an old window and well filled with good mellow soil may be sown with pepper grass, lettuce seed and radishes, and long before the garden produce is ready you will have tender green things for the table.

This tender pepper grass will soon reach four inches in height, and it may be used as a salad or on bread and butter for a sandwich filling. The slight pepper taste is most appetizing, and when combined with lettuce makes a delicious salad.

Utilize the flower urns and other places which cannot be planted out so early on account of frosts, but may be protected by glass, and raise any number of early things which are so good on the table in the spring.

In the early spring, when the first dandelion shows its green leaf, lay a few boards over a bed of the thickest of them, and see what a delicious salad bed of blanched leaves you can provide for your table for weeks. Dandelion is especially good for the blood, and so should be served often in the spring. The larger leaves, before the blossom comes, may be cut and cooked like spinach or with a little salt pork, then serve with vinegar for a sauce.

Mint is another early arrival, and is most delightful for a sauce with spring lamb. Cut a bunch and bruise the leaves, pour on a little boiling hot vinegar and let it steep for a while, then add a teaspoon or more of powdered sugar, and serve with the lamb.

Mint is also much relished as a mixture with other vegetables for salad. Take a bunch of mint and twice the quantity of lettuce, a few sprays of pepper grass and a few onions sliced. Cut all the greens as fine as possible without crushing, and pour over a French dressing, using three table-spoonsful of oil and one of vinegar, a half teaspoon of salt and a few dashes of red pepper and a half teaspoon of powdered sugar. Mix well and pour over the salad.

Women Worth While

MRS. WILLIAM F. McCOMBS.

(By Solen Armstrong Harmon.) At the White House wedding last fall there was a slender young girl in blue velvet who almost shared honors with the bride. Throughout the afternoon and evening she and the keen-eyed, smiling man beside her were surrounded by cabinet members, diplomats and other members of the capital's smart set who were among the guests. And with these young people, as with the newly married Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, good wishes and congratulations seemed to be the order of the day.

The young girl in blue velvet was Mrs. William F. McCombs, formerly Dorothy Williams of Washington. Now that she is the bride of the brilliant young lawyer who managed the campaign that placed President Wilson in the White House, the whole country wants to read about her.

Dorothy Williams made her debut in Washington in 1908. She was a running mate of Ethel Roosevelt's and Helen Taft's, and for four years was one of the capital's acknowledged belles. She sang and danced her way into the heart of every eligible bachelor in Washington's official set, and was rumored engaged to each of them at some time or another.

Mr. McCombs came to Washington for President Wilson's inauguration, of course. At one of the numerous big dinners given then he met Miss Williams. After that nobody else could meet him. Old friends who had journeyed to Washington to witness the inauguration ceremonies left town without congratulating Mr. McCombs on the part he played in the president's election. With the same directness and enthusiasm that had contributed to his success as chairman of the Democratic national committee, he was now playing court to Miss Williams.

Suddenly Mr. McCombs left this country for Europe. And rumor which was just about to announce him engaged to Miss Williams, forgot all about the matter.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, chartered the Howard Gould yacht for a trip around the world. Miss Dorothy Williams and her young sister were to join them in Paris and be their guests for the remainder of the cruise.

It didn't happen that way at all. In Paris Miss Williams and Mr. McCombs met once more. The siege begun by him in Washington was renewed. Suddenly a cablegram dropped like a bomb into Washington's exclusive circles. The message stated that Miss Williams and Mr. McCombs were engaged, but that they were to be married the next day. And they were—in London.

There was no trousseau, and there were no bridesmaids, with the exception of the bride's younger sister, who slipped into her prettiest frock and stood as maid of honor at the ceremony. The young people went to the nearest and most convenient church for the ceremony, but the Leiters were there, and Colonel and Mrs. Williams, the bride's parents, and a number of distinguished guests.

Then everybody guessed that Mr. McCombs would accept the ambassadorship to France, which it was understood the president still held open for him. When Mr. McCombs announced that he had declined to accept the foreign post, there was a general disappointment among his friends and the public. It had seemed such a fitting chapter with which to close a story of romance!

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To clean pudding pans put the little ones in the big ones, turn upside down in the dishpan and set on the stove to steam. They will clean in ten minutes.

When boiled frosting has been cooked too long, and a piece of butter to soften.

To keep chair legs from scratching varnished floors, glue heavy piece of cloth on each leg.

A bag of salt standing where there is a smell of fish will absorb the aroma.

THE TABLE.

Grape Whip—One cup grape juice, one tablespoon granulated gelatin. Soak gelatin in two tablespoons cold water, then dissolve in one-half cup boiling water; add grape juice and set aside until cool. Then place bowl in pan of ice water and beat until light and almost stiff; then pour into large bowl or ice cream glasses.

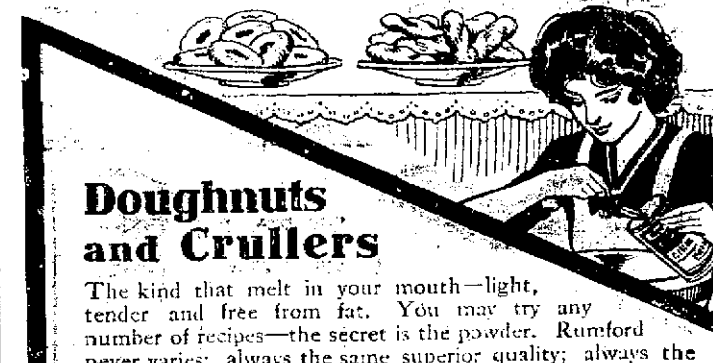

Spice Cakes—One cup brown sugar, one-half cup shortening, one cup New Orleans molasses, one teaspoon baking soda, three-quarters cup boiling water, two eggs, pinch salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon ginger, three cups flour. Put sugar, shortening and molasses into bowl, whip until smooth; then add baking soda dissolved in boiling water, well beaten eggs and mix well; add sifted flour, salt, cinnamon and ginger; mix thoroughly. Line pan with paper, pour in mixture and bake twenty to twenty-five minutes. Cheese Fondue (for four)—Take the place of meat. Mix one cup soft, stale bread crumbs, one-fourth pound grated cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon butter with one cup scalded milk. Add the yolk of three eggs well beaten. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Pour into a casserole or pudding dish and bake for twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Lemon Ice—Boil one quart water and one and one-quarters cups granulated sugar together for six minutes. Mix grated rind of two lemons with one-quarter cup lemon juice to the syrup. Cool, strain and freeze.

Pineapple Sherbet—Three cups grated pineapple, two cups sugar, three cups water, one tablespoon lemon juice. Boil sugar and water six minutes; when cool add lemon juice and pineapple which has been pressed through a coarse strainer or fruit press. Freeze.

Restoring Venus. The Rokeby Venus, the beautiful painting in the British National gallery which was slashed by a militant suffragist, has been so deftly repaired that the damage done cannot be detected by the ordinary observer. As a concession to properly accredited art students the gallery, which was closed to the public after the outrage, has been reopened to them.

Miss Helen Morton.

Miss Helen Morton, niece of the late Secretary of the Navy Paul Morton, and a Chicago heiress, almost frightened her family to death by mysteriously disappearing from home last week, without telling anyone where she was going. Later she turned up at Delaplane, Virginia. "Pop got peevish," she explained, "and so I borrowed some money and took a train for Virginia."

Practical Use of Seismograph. Probably the most unusual purpose to which the seismograph has ever been put is that of determining the amount of vibrations in a locomotive as a result of unbalanced driving wheels. Engineers have devised some ingenious methods of cutting down this vibration which means a greatly decreased consumption of coal.

SELECTION OF SEED IMPORTANT FACTOR IN SECURING LAWNS

Kentucky Blue Grass and Red Top Mixture Suggested as the Most Available.

Even though the lawn has not been seeded during the early spring, it will still be possible to get a good lawn. This, however, should not be done during a drought. All lawns should have some application of seed in the spring that they may appear well during the rest of the season, according to the United States department of agriculture's landscape gardener.

The best and most widely used mixture for seeding a lawn is one of Kentucky blue grass and red top, equal parts by weight. On absolutely bare soil a pound of seed should be sown to every 250 square feet. Only one-fourth of that amount is necessary on moderately good lawns. Only the very best seed should be used. Seed that is furnished by a reliable seedman is likely to be good. Thin places should be heavily seeded, and when there are considerable areas almost without grass, it is advisable to sow white clover seed in addition to the mixture already recommended. More often the cause for poor results than the quality of seed. Where the surface of the ground is not loosened up and well pulverized so that the seeds may come in contact with the soil, the best seed will not germinate. There should also be a covering of vegetable matter (humus) in the ground for the seed to give the best results.

Sometimes bad weather conditions, as drought, will affect results, though the seed is good and the soil has been well prepared; nor is a quick rain at the time of sowing an undoubted blessing, for if such a rain just causes the seeds to sprout, and is then followed by dry weather, the seed seeds, already plentiful in the soil, will also sprout and being stronger to resist the dry weather than the grass seed, will crowd out the latter. The seedman in such a case may be blamed without reason for selling an inferior product.

Bad watering is the cause of almost as many poor lawns as droughts, according to the landscape gardener of the United States department of agriculture. Frequent watering of merely roots of the grass near the surface, and these roots should be made to grow down as deeply as possible in order to secure a fine lawn that will resist the hottest weather of summer. The best method of watering the grass is to apply a spray for some 12 to 15 hours, the stream being so fine that water will not collect in puddles, but will run off the surface, and the roots will grow into the soil. When this method is used, the lawn should not be watered often, but once a week and then the water penetrates so that the ground beneath the surface. As a general rule, watering once a week is sufficient to keep a lawn in good condition.

The man who enjoys watering his lawn in the evening for a half hour after returning from work will probably prefer this method to leaving the stream on for a number of hours once a week. If he will divide his lawn into a different part each evening, he will obtain practically the same results. He should be careful, also, to use merely a gentle spray, and not continue watering to such an extent that water runs off, as such water does no good. In fact, it may do harm, for it may remove loose dirt from the grass roots and expose them to drought. The strong stream of water should not be used, as it helps to expose the roots unnecessarily.

Many people wonder why drought dries up their lawns in July after they have taken what they consider to be good care of them. The combination of hot winds and dry weather makes July undoubtedly the hardest month for lawns, and when the roots near the surface are exposed by the loose dirt is also removed from them by a hose of strong water power, the results are more disastrous than if the lawn had been left alone.

Are You Getting The Most Out of Your Talents.

Two women living side by side in a town not a thousand miles from here were talking about the steadily mounting prices on the everyday articles of life. One woman was a graduate from her home High School, and had a really splendid training in music. She was the mother of one little girl. Her husband was holding down a fairly good position, and was a steady man.

The other woman had been forced to leave school at the end of her Sophomore term, due to the fact that her mother's health was rapidly failing. She never had the opportunity to return to school; neither did she possess the musical talent nor training of her neighbor.

She did possess in a marked degree the grit that is so vitally necessary to play the game today with a smiling face and your shoulder to the wheel. She had two children, and while her husband was to her way of thinking (happy woman) "the very best man in the world." He did not have a position that brought what you might term a princely salary.

She had by a judicious use of the want ad page of her own home paper earned many a dollar at home. The other woman instead of earning, whined. . . . Would you use the want ad page?

FINANCIAL.

FINANCIAL—We offer for sale several 6% farm mortgages that we have taken within the last few months. These mortgages run from 25% to 40% of the value of the lands and are in localities where we are well acquainted with lands and their value.

Our business for the last fifteen years has been to loan money. During that time we have been compelled to learn a few things about securities. We would not now offer these years of experience by loaning our own money on these same securities in these same localities if we could find anything better.

Based on the fact we have yet to sell the first mortgage on which there is a loss or even inconvenience to a customer we recommend these. Good Gold-Stacked Loan & Credit Co., W. O. Newhouse, Vice Pres. 2-5-20-31.
